

The Times

Professor records his book for RFB&D

Thursday, May 10, 2007

Freeman Dyson, professor emeritus at the Institute for Advanced Study, poses with Phyllis Branin of Lawrence, a volunteer with Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic, after she directed Dyson's recording of his recently published book "Scientist as Rebel" during the nonprofit organization's recent Record-A-Thon (R-A-T) at its New Jersey Unit facilities on the campus of St. Joseph's Seminary in Princeton. Branin and other New Jersey Unit volunteers gave more time during R-A-T to record educational texts for individuals who cannot effectively read standard text because of a visual impairment or learning disability. For more information about RFB&D, call (609) 750-1830 or look online (www.rfdnj.org).

© 2007 The Times of Trenton

© 2007 NJ.com All Rights Reserved.